Expedition Tulamben, Bali

Tulamben on Bali is a small villiage in the north-east corner of the island and is the perfect place to go diving. There are several dive spots that are just short drive away from the resort and the area also has it's own grand wreck called the USS Liberty which sunk in 1963. We can also recommend that you combine your visit in Tulamben with a couple of nights in Ubud and enjoy the nature or perhaps a couple of nights in Kuta Beach to do some shopping and experience the highlife. Please talk to you trip advisor at Scuba Travel for more suggestions.

Tulamben is also a great spot to start your diving career. A lot of the dive sites are easy to dive and Bali Dive Resort have their own house reef, so you can with ease do your first dives here and if you want to you can get a Swedish instructor.

ABOUT THE DIVING

Practically every species of reef fish can be seen in abundance: schooling fish such as snappers, tunas and jack fish, as well as the solitary species of fish, e.g. large groupers. With this amount and variety of fish species, one can spend the entire holiday diving only the house reef. There is seldom strong current and water temperatures vary between 26-29 degrees depending on the time of year.

Great reefs, unbelievable colours, manta rays and sun fishes all year round and, of course, one of the best diving areas for nudibranches, critters and all other kinds of macro life worldwide. Photographers get their money worth both above and below the water's surface!

Tulamben is mainly known for the US Liberty wreck that lies close to the shore. The wreck lies in shallow water and is considered appropriate for divers of all certification levels. The ship rests in 30 meters of water, is roughly 25 meters from shore and can be reached with a short swim from the beach. The highest point of the wreck tops out about 5 meters from the surface.
